People Baewoodacompany

Various Voice, Valuable Performance
Yang Seo-jung, Chae Won-jin Reporters

Unite People with Art, Baewoodacompany
Baewoodacompany creates works of art based on performing arts, and conducts art education through them. There are about eight members who perform mainly for Baewoodacompany, with each having no specific role. Instead, they take on the project they want to do and volunteer to be in charge of it. They also visit the art education site with issues related to school violence, environment, or gender. In addition, they are holding workshops and meetings among themselves with the aim of providing what young artists need in the region. The keynote of Baewoodacompany is to unite people with art; in fact, the purpose of their establishment was for self-fulfillment, but later embodied the desire to connect the community with the socially disadvantaged, along with incorporating meaningful social values into their art.

Constantly Preparing to Communicate with the Audience

Enduring Difficult Moment: COVID-19 and Cancellation
Song won said that the most memorable performance during her eight-year career was <Attachment Form 01_Resume> in 2021. The performance is called '설날연기', '서식 01_0(국)', in Korean. She said, "It was the first performance we did in Seoul." She added, "It was the largest audience I had performed in front of in eight years, so I received a lot of reviews about this performance. The process of making a performance is precious, but I found that I am very happy to receive an immediate response from the audience." Then Song said that there is a co-created performance called <Cinderella>, which was made last year. It is a family drama about Cinderella. It is a story about the protagonist chasing her dream. In addition, there is a play called <Failure Star Ks>. If the play is selected to run again, Song won and her fellow actors will perform it. This play is about the struggles of a person who has failures in life, reference to the audition program called 'Superstar K'.

Holding out, Comforting Someone
She realized that art groups are structurally most vulnerable after the cancellation of the performance. Her fellow actors had to bear the brunt of the damage caused by the cancellation. Although it was not easy to overcome, four people worked through it by sharing roles fairly with one another. Song won gave her point of view to local college students and local young artists at the end of the interview. She thinks everyone in life is struggling in their own way. She said, "In my opinion, I am positive that young people like you are doing their best in life. Therefore, I just want to tell you that Baewoodacompany's presence can give you comfort. You can find solace in realizing that we are holding out even if people don't realize it."

Enduring Limited Budget and Undermanning
In the usual process of planning a performance, active communication takes place and the group members are not afraid of conflict. Likewise, there are no big difficulties in Baewoodacompany. In addition, members are not pursuing a profit, so conflict is less likely to occur. However, life was not without adversity for Baewoodacompany. The process of performing <Listener> was a difficult experience. It was performed at the Moak Hall of the Sori Art Center of Jeollabuk-do in 2019. Moak Hall is the biggest hall in the Sori Art Center of Jeollabuk-do, and its backstage is nearly as big as a soccer field. Song said, "we felt that it was difficult to fill such a large stage because there were only sixteen actors as well as a limited budget."

Baewoodacompany presents meaningful performances with noteworthy themes. How about watching one of their performances? You can apply their message to your life. You can easily meet them at the concert hall in Jeonju and find them on social media in advance.

One Day Event Stained Glass Art

How to Catch Peaceful Light

Park Ji-woo Editor-in-Chief, Kim Doe-hye Reporter

Have you heard of stained-glass art? This is the art that uses glass to make various objects used in daily life. Unlike other materials, glass is transparent and uniquely reflects and refracts light. If you hang a suncatcher in your room, your everyday objects glimmer beautifully. In Jeonju, there is a handicraft studio where you can experience stained-glass art. The JBNU Globe visited it and experienced creating stained glass. Shall we take a look at the process?

When I arrived at Yuri Viche, a studio where we can experience stained-glass art, I felt good even before I went in. I was greeted with small items that shone in the sun. In particular, that day was very fine, and it made me feel as if I were shiny and beautiful. Thus, if you want to join the class, I recommend you visit on a sunny day. There are so many brilliant and lovely items that are impossible to capture in a picture. When I entered the studio, the instructor welcomed me joyfully. People who take one-day classes are often first-timers, so she releases attendees by starting off with some light chat.

I sat down after donning a work apron, sleeve protectors, and gloves. A sign in front of the desk lists in detail precautions to take during the class, the order of classes, the tools' names, and their usage. The class started after we took a moment to read it carefully.

Before I started making suncatchers, I listened to an explanation about how to cut glass and I practiced using a glass cutter. During the process, I learned how to handle not only glass cutters but all the tools, such as running pliers and breaking pliers.

1. Glass Cutters: These are used to cut glass. The top part of the glass cutter contains oil. The oil reduces friction when pressed, allowing the blade to be used longer and helping it to cut smoothly.
 2. Running Pliers: They are useful for cutting curves. They are mainly used to break off large pieces.
 3. Breaking Pliers: They are used for breaking off pieces of glass. They are mainly used to split off small pieces.

4. Don't worry if the sketches and the glass pieces are not exactly the same shapes. Even if its outline is rough, the instructor trims it minutely. The grinder was able to refine the rough areas and bring out the precise details.

5. A rainbow now appears in my room every time there is sunlight glinting through my window. It was not too difficult after all to capture sunlight! Like a suncatcher's name suggests, good vibes seem to seep into my room. Do you want to capture the light? If so, why don't you make your own special suncatcher?

16 JBNU Globe ©Kim Doe-hye

It was nearly done! The next step was to put copper tape on the edges of the trimmed glass. This is essential before the next step is taken. The copper tape should be attached to the front and back as evenly as possible. That way you can make a nice border that will not fall off. It was difficult for me to attach the tape along the curves, but I was able to complete it with the instructor's assistance.

Before I moved on, I had to wear sanitary gloves and electric gloves. The next step was soldering. I changed the color of the copper tape through soldering to silver. When my turn was over, the instructor perfected the work. After trimming the bumpy parts and attaching a link to connect them, she washed the pieces.

Tips!

Make sure to wear protective equipment. The temperature of the soldering iron is very hot, so extreme caution is needed. If you play around or fail to concentrate on your work, you may have an accident. Safety is the most important thing!

6. It's okay not to cut all the winding sides at once. Try to use the glass cutter vertically as much as possible. If the glass cutter is tilted and under pressure, not only does it make it difficult to cut on the line properly but it can also cause small fragments to form when splitting the glass later. Additionally, don't forget to sweep away pieces of glass from time to time!

7. The final step was to pick the other three pieces of glass. A total of five pieces of glass are used for the suncatcher, so I had to choose three more in addition to the two I made. After I chose the rest of the pieces and arranged them, I wove them together using loops. Then it was over! I was able to make my own suncatcher in this class. A suncatcher gleaming in the sunlight is a beautiful sight to behold. The process of making it was not easy, so the finished product felt more precious.

Culture Youth Jeonju

Connection between Youth and Jeonju

Park Ji-woo Editor-in-chief, Yoon Ye-rim, Jo Soo-jin Reporters

Are you preparing to get a job or want to experience various activities? There is a space for young adults operated by Jeonju City. It's called Youth Jeonju, in Korean called "청년이음전주". The word "청년" means young adults in English. The word "이음" is vital for the name of the space, which means "connection" in English. When translated, this space means connecting the youth with Jeonju. It not only connects youth with Jeonju but also with other youth. Furthermore, its role connects youth and all generations. It is a space created to help you live a more prosperous life.

Post-its for Communication
In front of the door, post-its are prepared to take visitors' suggestions. Visitors write down feedback or what they want relating to the overall operation of Youth Jeonju. These help the center develop. If visitors recommend a book on the post-it, the center prepares a book on the bookshelf. The programs work the same as the book suggestions. If you think of any suggestions while using the center, write them down on the post-it.

Communication Space and Shared Bookshelf
Go straight after leaving the AI interview room, and there is a bookshelf and communication space. The communication space is not a room, it's an open area. It consists of wooden seats, comfy cushions, and other comfortable seating. There is also a saying written in Korean on the wall that encourages young people. This area was made for visitors to communicate freely with others anytime the center is open. Visitors can read books and chat while drinking tea or coffee. The books are on the bookshelf located next to the communication space. On the bookshelf, there are books that visitors recommended and books prepared for job seekers. Job seekers can read these books to study for the job they want. The center prepared not only study books but also self-help and motivational books for job seekers. A reservation is not necessary to use the communication space and read the books.

AI Interview Room
When you enter Youth Jeonju, you can see the AI room on your left. In the AI interview room, you can use the AI mock interview system. It runs for two hours and can be used in preparation for actual interviews. It is available to three people a day. Therefore, if you want to use the AI Interview room, you should call to make a reservation at the center.

Multi-purpose Room
The Youth Jeonju center has a space for group activities located next to the communication space: the multi-purpose room. Visitors can hold or take seminars, Youth Jeonju programs, book clubs or youth organizational meetings, one-day classes, and other activities. There are lots of seats and desks so that many people can use the place. In addition, this room has a touch screen, which is large enough for everyone in the room to view during a presentation. Visitors can rent the room and use the screen for free, but they should make a reservation by contacting the center.
